DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 3 and 4 are pending. Claims 1-2 have been canceled.

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

2. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 07/12/2006 has been entered.

Drawings

3. The drawings are objected to because Figure 2 lacks element numbers for each specific element with the figure. Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains; or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

4. Claims 3-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The Detailed Description of the Preferred Embodiment merely recites what the input terminal of figure 1 embodies. Moreover, there is no describe relationship between the elements listed as 1-4 (specification page 3, 4-10) that would enable one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to understand how these four elements function together. Further, the numbers found on page 3, line 11 through page 5, line 2 do not have any described functionality and it is unclear how these characters are to be used. As it appears in the description, they merely list a series of Chinese Characters. The Detailed Description of the Preferred Embodiment does not describe the claims in a way that would allow one of ordinary skill in the art to understand how to use the invention without extensive experimentation.

5. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The steps (b) processing said Chinese-style language character; and (c) outputting compatible display said Chinese-style language words based on said input of said alphabetical letter keys of English Languages, said Numerical Keys from 0 to 9, said miscellaneous symbolic and function keys, and said Chinese character keys, contain new matter. These steps seem to be directed to Figure 1, Data Processor and Output Terminal; however, it is not described in detail anywhere in the specification that the Data Processor processes the Chinese-style Language Character. Figure 1, depicts the input to the Data Processor as being (1) Alphabets of visual or audio characters, (2) Numeral characters from 0 to 9 (3) Chinese indicative Characters and (4) Miscellaneous Keys for system operation, where the Data Processor would process each of the four inputs in some fashion, not the Chinese-style language character as recited in claim 4. Further, the output terminal of Figure 1 merely is a compatible display. The specification does not state in detail how the display is to be used, and what output is to be displayed. The only mention of the display is found within Figure 1, and is not described anywhere within the specification. By claiming "outputting compatible display said Chinese-style language words based on said input of said alphabetical letter keys of English Languages, said Numerical Keys from 0 to 9, said miscellaneous symbolic and function keys, and said Chinese character keys" new matter has been introduced.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

7. Claims 3-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bernath (5,212,638).

As to claim 3, Bernath teaches:

- (a) inputting alphabetical letter keys of English languages (inputting alphabetical letter keys, Fig. 1a and col. 13, lines 1-12);
- (b) inputting numerical keys from 0 to 9 (Fig. 1a and col. 13, lines 1-12);
- (c) inputting miscellaneous symbolic and functional keys (Fig. 1a "Shift," "Enter," "I," "II," "III," and "IV"); and
- (d) inputting specific Chinese character keys, wherein said Chinese character keys are sued for indicative purpose to differentiate the meaning of Chinese words of similar phonetic values (inputting symbols of the Chinese-Style National Phonetic alphabet, col. 8, lines 1-10 ad Fig. 1a).

Elements 4-01 through 4-33 of claim 3 are directed to nonfunctional descriptive material and have not been given any patentable weight.

As to claim 4, Bernath teaches:

- (a) producing Chinese-style language character by (col. 8., lines 35-40);
 - (a.1) inputting alphabetical letter keys of English languages (inputting alphabetical letter keys, Fig. 1a and col. 13, lines 1-12);
 - (a.2) inputting numerical keys from 0 to 9 (Fig. 1a and col. 13, lines 1-12);
 - (a.3) inputting miscellaneous symbolic and functional keys (Fig. 1a "Shift," "Enter," "I," "II," "III," and "IV"); and
 - (a.4) inputting specific Chinese character keys, wherein said Chinese character keys are sued for indicative purpose to differentiate the meaning of Chinese words of similar phonetic values (inputting symbols of the Chinese-Style National Phonetic alphabet, col. 8, lines 1-10 ad Fig. 1a).

(b) processing said Chinese-style language character (col. 13, lines 33-36);
and

(c) outputting compatible display said Chinese-style language words based on said inputs of said alphabetical letter keys of English languages and said numerical keys from 0 to 9, said miscellaneous symbolic and functional keys and said Chinese character keys (Fig. 6A, display is output from processing Character Code).

Elements 4-01 through 4-33 of claim 4 are directed to nonfunctional descriptive material and have not been given any patentable weight.
